

Simultaneous recordings from large populations of neurons allow for understanding encoding of spatial and temporal features of visual experience

Genetic-Optical techniques allow for analysis of morphology, recording and control of neural activity in defined populations of cells

